Block 12 / Section 25 Denman Prospect

Gently sloping to the road and designed for the active family this home will be a long term proposition as the design is flexible enough to meet the needs of the growing and changing family.

With the master and fourth bedrooms situated together, the fourth bedroom can be firstly a nursery, then a study and finally and parents retreat as the family grows and ages.

The upper level is a real bonus with a second master bedroom with another ensuite and the options for the extended family never looked so good.

The living areas will have a northerly aspect and the three different areas have an endless list of choices that they can be named and roles they can take on. The kitchen is also grand and combined with the enormous walk in pantry it has space for the largest family. And boasting one of the largest alfrescos we have included in a design, it will be a hub for family life and a welcome addition to the overall design.

Lastly, the stepped design makes this plan a master of all terrain and it works on sloping sites and flat blocks equally as well. This split level feature also means that the home will have high ceilings and character beyond the norm. A truly unique home with so much to offer.
